Food Manufacturing Excellence A Journey of Continuous Improvement

21st April 2020

Online Session

'The food industry is changing, it is getting faster, customers want more new products, employees want a better experience and technology is advancing. How do you deliver quicker, smarter, better and ensure that every day you deliver the right quality product, at the right cost, on time and in full with safe products, safe places and engaged people.

The food and drink industry have a great opportunity to learn from other food manufacturing sectors and engage their teams in developing an effective continuous improvement approach. Understanding how to lead in this environment, empowering your teams to create standards to sustain performance, whilst also working effectively on the next big opportunity is key to your growth.

Hear how food manufacturing excellence programmes can work in your company and deliver performance of the future. Delivering sustainable business results, through focussing on leadership team development and systems thinking. Leveraging skills gained from a portfolio career covering Continuous Improvement, Quality Management and Product Innovation.
